

THE SPEAKERS

DR. CHARLES BROWNE is Professor of Applied Linguistics and Director of the Teacher Training Program at Meiji Gakuin University, Japan. He is a well known expert in online language learning and vocabulary acquisition, and works hard to share this knowledge with teachers around the world. He has recently authored an innovative new course, In Focus for Cambridge University Press

STUART VINNIE lives in Bangkok, and works throughout the ASEAN region as the Senior Training Consultant, ELT, for Cambridge University Press. Stuart previously worked for the British Council in Thailand, Hong Kong and Portugal, and the University of Nottingham in China. He holds the RSA/Cambridge DELTA and an MA TESOL.

COLM DOWNES, author of Cambridge English for Job Hunting, is a professional communication skills consultant. Colm specialises in the development, delivery and evaluation of EAP and ESP courses. He is currently based in Jakarta, managing a new British Council project 'English for Peacekeeping' in partnership with the Indonesian Ministry of Defence.

CHRIS PEARCE taught mathematics in secondary schools for 30 years. For much of that time he had responsibility for the teaching of mathematics throughout the school. He moved on to become an advisor for the National Mathematics Strategy in England for more than six years, working with secondary schools to help them to improve their teaching of the subject. He is currently employed as a writer of textbooks and assessment resources for mathematics, including the Cambridge Checkpoint textbooks and questions for the Checkpoint examination.
